Since i created my first static website i knew i wanted to be a web developer, and all the efforts and my free time went towards that goal.

Now i fell ready to start doing it as a job, and i'll put all my efforts to improve myself and become one of the best.

PROJECTS

Yelp Camp

This is the project i spend the longest time to develop, having to learn at every turn a new technology was not easy, and to this point there are multiple UI/UX improvements to be made but i got it to to a working viable product that could be used as a real world application.

Patatap Clone

This is a simple JavaScript clone of patatap app, not as complex as the original but working on the same principles.

The whole screen is a canvas and every press of a alphabet key generates a different sound and a circle that fades away.

RGB color game

This is a simple game that asks you to guess which colour from the six squares corresponds to the RGB code in the header, has an easy mode where you have to guess from 3 colours and change colour feature
